28TH OCTOBER 2026

SUEZ CANAL TRANSITS

Subject: Suez Canal Transits – Routing Options, Freight Pricing and Marine Insurance

Dear Customer,

We would like to bring to your attention the evolving situation regarding shipping lines and their potential return to transiting the Suez Canal, following a period of disruption and the use of alternative routing via the Cape of Good Hope.

1.Shipping Lines Returning to Suez Canal Transits

Some shipping lines have elected to begin reinstating Suez Canal transits as conditions evolve. However, the timing and extent of any return will vary between carriers and services, depending on their individual operational and security assessments.

As a result, routing arrangements, transit times and schedules may change at short notice. Any planned return to Suez Canal routing should not be taken as a guarantee of fixed schedules or transit times, and services may remain subject to operational changes.

2. Alternative Routing and Pricing Options

As shipping lines return to Suez Canal transits, we intend to utilise those services in order to provide the best possible service for our customers.

Upon request and where available, we can explore alternative routing options, including services via the Cape of Good Hope or other suitable alternatives, depending on the shipment requirements and carrier availability.

We can provide indicative routing options, transit times and associated freight pricing to help you make an informed decision. Please note that rates, schedules and surcharges may vary depending on the selected carrier, routing and prevailing market conditions.

If you have any upcoming shipments for which routing flexibility is important, please contact our team to discuss the available options before confirming your bookings.

3. Important Reminder: Marine Insurance Coverage

In light of the changing shipping environment, we strongly recommend that all customers review their existing marine cargo insurance policies to ensure that adequate coverage is in place for their shipments.

28TH OCTOBER 2026

SUEZ CANAL TRANSITS

In particular, please confirm with your insurance provider or broker that your policy provides appropriate cover for:

- The intended shipping route, including any transit through the Suez Canal or via the Cape of Good Hope.
- Relevant war risks, political risks and other applicable exclusions or restrictions.
- Potential changes to routing, delays, diversions or extended transit periods.
- Any additional premiums, declarations or conditions that may apply to specific routes or regions.

Please be aware that marine cargo insurance terms and exclusions vary between policies. Cover should not be assumed to extend automatically to all routes or risks, and additional cover or written confirmation from your insurer may be required.

4. Responsibility for Insurance:

Customers are responsible for ensuring that adequate insurance is arranged for their cargo and that the policy terms meet their individual requirements. We recommend obtaining confirmation from your insurer or broker before shipment, wherever there is any uncertainty regarding coverage.

5. Our Commitment to you

We will continue to monitor developments and keep customers informed of relevant changes affecting shipping routes, transit times and freight costs.

Should you wish to review the routing options available for your upcoming shipments, please contact our team. We will be happy to discuss the alternatives and provide the relevant pricing information to support your planning.

NNR Global Logistics have been helping customers navigate complex situations for many years and have the expertise and knowledge to guide you through changing processes. We are always happy to sit down and talk with you about your requirement and our solutions. Please get in touch with us for a free initial supply chain and international transportation consultation.

Thank you for your continued business and cooperation. Kind regards,

NNR Global Logistics